HUNT KAMCHATKA BROWN BEAR

(Ursus arctos piscator)

This is one of our favorite hunts, which usually not only proves successful, but also brings you back to the old Russian hunting traditions. Hunters are unanimous in calling Kamchatka Peninsula a Bear's stronghold. Kamchatka remoteness from the rest of the world, its climatic conditions and thinly populated areas made it a home for among the world's biggest brown bears. The average weight of Kamchatka Bear is between 600 and 1200 pounds (300 and 600 kg), and the hide is 8 - 10 ft (270 - 310 cm) in size. So, these bears are bigger than those in Chukotka, Magadan or Khabarovsk region. To take a big and fresh hide, one has to hunt in spring when hides are of better quality. Since terrain is covered with snow during spring hunt, hunters use skies or skidoos. On the seacoast small motor boats are also used (during the 2nd spring term).

Hunting: Bears are hunted as they are emerging from dens. The hunter and the guide will travel great distance by snowmobile looking for a track of a large bear. Your guide drives a snowmobile and you sit in the sled behind. Once the fresh tracks are cut, the hunter will follow the bear. When the bear is spotted you stalk the bear on foot, snow shoes or skis. After May 15th the hunting area will get less snow and we use camps at the Okhotsk seacoast and hunt more on foot and with use of jet-boat for spotting. Fall hunts are done on boat, foot, spotting and stalking, observing active salmon streams, berry patches and feeding areas. Horse back hunt is available in some of the areas.
